

cKinetics invites you to the inaugural conversation of the Delhi Sustainability Speaker Series

Friday, May 18th, 2012 Time: 6:00 pm-7:55pm
Shangri-La's Eros Hotel, New Delhi

The Great Debate on the Sustainability
Conundrum of an Emerging Economy: “Why care about the needs of tomorrow if the needs of today aren't met?”

cKinetics is hosting a first in a series of private invitation-only event to provide an interactive platform to connect Companies, Investors, Policy Makers and other Market Makers. Thought leaders on sustainability issues come together to identify market based solutions to deal with the challenges of sustainability, as India looks to accelerate its growth trajectory.

Evening agenda

6:00 pm	Check-in and happy-hour cocktails
6:15 pm – 6:30 pm	“Investor View on a Common Framework for E&S Disclosure in India”: snapshot summarizing the investor roundtable convened by cKinetics in association with GIZ and supported by the Rockefeller Foundation.
6:30 pm – 6:50 pm	Keynote address: Dr. Ashok Khosla  As the father of Sustainable Development in India, Dr. Khosla's career epitomizes the path to identifying market based and marketable solutions to the most pressing challenges facing the present and future generations. His address will provide the audience with key insights into identifying the commonalities between economics of businesses and economics of social equity and ecological protection.
6:50 pm – 7.15 pm	Moderated Parliamentary (Open house) Debate on Sustainability Conundrum of an Emerging Economy: “Why care about the needs of tomorrow if the needs of today aren't met?”
7.15 pm onwards	Networking and Interactions continued over cocktails